E. BEE GUTHRIE

E. Bee Guthrie, formerly of Tulsa, who is one of the best known newspaper men of the state, has assumed business and editorial control of the Tulsa County Chief, a weekly newspaper which was established at Tulsa in 1892. Mr. Guthrie announces that he will run a simon-pure democratic paper and will not attempt to be an iconoclast. In other words, he will run a constructive paper which will be of service to his city and county.

SOUTHWEST TRAIL BOOSTS OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma is given splendid advertising in the current number of The Southwest Trail, a monthly magazine published by the Rock Island lines. The number is intended as a means of interesting homeseekers in the farming advantages of the state. It is crammed with statistical formation, not only about crops, but also about the mineral resources, especially oil and gas. The latter feature will make it of interest to investors who have industrial development in view.

Emphasis is laid upon Oklahoma's farm educational advantages, there being articles about the Agricultural work of the United States department college, and the work of the United States department of agriculture through county farm advisers. There is also an article about the southwest American livestock show, the company having sent the editor of The Southwest Trail to write up the show and point out the advantages of Oklahoma for the production of pure bred stock.

The number is the most complete publication of its kind ever issued by any railroad company in the interest of Oklahoma's development and it will, no doubt, be appreciated by the public.

CARING FOR VISITORS

There is but one way to obtain an opportunity of doing big things. That one opportunity lies in being faithful in doing little things. Ardmore at this time does not aspire to be the convention city of the state, although some time it may be an important convention center. Its only opportunity to obtain that honor lies in its willingness to care for the conventions that come here.

The pupils of Carter county will be here in large numbers next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, unless they are kept away by the rain. So many are coming that it will be impossible to house them in the hotels of the city. Ardmore's hotel room is pretty well filled these days by the regular trade that comes to the city, and it does not take a very big crowd to give them more than they can do. So on this occasion, Ardmore people must be depended upon to open their homes. This city can take care of these children, and Ardmore will be proud of the opportunity. Those who come will be the leaders in their respective schools. They will be the pupils who have done the best work, and who are equipped to represent their schools in music, declamation, spelling, and on the athletic grounds. They will be happy visitors, they will bring the sunshine of youth into the homes they enter, they will bring courage on the eve of battle, and it ought to be a pleasure to have these children in the homes.

Supt. Thurston wants to know who will offer rooms, and a phone call to him will be a big favor to Ardmore.

THE MISUNDERSTOOD BOY

In her address before the Mothers' Congress held in Nashville last week Mrs. Elizabeth Harrison called attention to the misunderstood boy.

Youth changes its indications through heat of blood. The boy who is on the verge of puberty must be handled gently. He is fractious. It is his formative stage. He is approaching the real functions of life. He is quick to be impressed, and it is the time when he can be easily directed toward the right or toward the wrong. A kindly expression of patience may make a good man of him; a show of impatient neglect may send him to the bad.

Family pride, through which a boy is forced to accept a wrong vocation, the idea that money is the object of work, and the indifference of parents in helping their sons select a proper vocation are the three great obstacles to the success of young Americans today.

Mrs. Harrison is president of the National Kindergarten College of Chicago, and is eminently qualified to express a sensible opinion on the subject.

If the boy is loose in his principles and habits, if he lives without plan or object, spending his time in idleness and pleasure, there is more hope for a fool than there is for him.

Every period of life has its peculiar temptations and dangers, but youth is the time when most of us are likely to be ensnared. Youth is the spring season of disposition and habit. It is during this season, more than any other, that the character assumes its permanent shape and the young will take their course for time and for eternity.

Parents should be patient at this transitional period in the lives of their young. More than one misunderstood boy has had his career ruined because of parental misunderstanding.

Indifference in homes is charged by Mrs. Harrison to be the responsible cause for the increase of youthful crime. Character building should be made a study. Parents who expect great things of their youngsters should make character building a particular study, so that they may adaptively teach the growing youth of either sex that lies before them, so that they may leave home helpful and hopeful young men and women prepared to participate in the battle of life.—Commercial Appeal.

In Pontotoc County.
 (From Ada News)

It was thought that the MacThwaite gas well on the Floyd farm in section 28-4-6 would be brought in Sunday, but the casing became unruly and delayed the game for one or two days. The well may not be brought in before Tuesday or Wednesday. The flow of gas increased of its own accord from 2,600,000 to between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 feet. Many of the oil men believe this will be one of the strongest gassets in the field.

The Lewis well in section 29-3-4 is looking better as the drill goes deeper. There has been a showing of both gas and oil. Mr. Lewis says he may have some interesting developments within a few days.

The Sunset Francis company has ordered several large tanks for their well in section 36-5-6, known as the Tidewater. The casing has come in for drilling deeper. The owners did not want to take any chance in case they strike a flow that cannot be stopped easily. The tanks will be ready for instant use. If no oil at a greater depth is found, the present production will be utilized.

Activity in the local field increases every day. Leases are changing hands slowly but at good prices. More locations are to be made in the next few days and other parts of the county are to have tests.

Uncle Eben.

"Callin' names," said Uncle Eben, "ain't high as sporty an' excitin' a pastime as it was when folks was supposed to fight or keep still."

Elements of Success.

The man who has failed two or three times has built the foundation for success. He needs to put a little grit into the mortar, that's all.

The Ardmoreite car leaves The Ardmoreite office for Wirt and intermediate points, promptly at 4 o'clock every afternoon. One passenger can be taken. This car also leaves every Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. Packages accepted when brought to the office.

Quaint Custom.

In accordance with a belief in the West of England, the boots last worn before the man of the house enlisted are hung over his bed, in order to insure that he will return in safety to wear them again.

Found It Hard.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman enlivened with an appropriate anecdote at the Colony club in New York an argument on domestic economy.

"I hope," she said, "that there are few men like Smith."
 "Smith got married, and the evening of his first pay day he gave his bride $14 of his $15 salary, and kept only a dollar for himself."

"But the second pay day Smith gave his wife one dollar and kept $14 for himself."

"Why, John," she said passionately, "how on earth do you think I can manage for a whole week on a paltry dollar?"

"Darned if I know," he answered in calm tones. "I had a rotten time myself last week. It's your turn now." —Philadelphia Bulletin.

Moved Quinine Trees.

Sir Clements Robert Markham, explorer, traveler, archeologist, who introduced the cultivation of the quinine yielding cinchona trees from Peru in British India, an act of incalculable value to the world at large, is now eighty-five years of age. For many years he held the presidency of the Royal Geographical society. His life has been one of travel and adventure, beginning with the navy in 1844. He served in the arctic expedition of 1850-1851, and the following year left the navy. Then followed journeys of a scientific nature to Peru and Abyssinia, and in 1867 he became secretary of the India office. Many volumes of travels, history and of a general character came from his pen, including the masterly "The Incas of Peru."

Information.

"What does it mean," asked Willie, looking up from his history lesson, "when it says that the Roman neither asked nor gave quarter?"

"Why—er—you see, they had a different system of currency in those days," replied his father, "and so, of course, they didn't call them quarters. They called them sesterces or dinasauris, or something like that."

MRS. BRAY LEAD UNION PRAYER MEETING TODAY

of man. Man began to pray when he was first cast upon the sea of sin. The Mohammedan prayer is earnest. Do you, when you pray, actually call upon the name of the Lord? I doubt if there is one here tonight but what offers his prayer, or at least calls upon the Lord. Some people pray backwards, which is nothing short of profanity. Women often take the name of the Lord in vain, when they say, "O Lord, O my Lord." This is nothing short of profanity and is a bad example to set before the children in your homes." The evangelist here insisted that to call upon the Lord, except in a reverential and earnest way, is irreverent and breaks the commandment against profanity.

"If all men failed to pray and to call upon the name of the Lord, it would not pay the Lord to wind up this old world for another twenty-four hours. Why create a world like this, with all its wonders, with all its beauty and with all its seasons, for a people who don't think enough of the Creator to stop every day and thank Him for it, and the many blessings?" Dr. Williams insisted that God wants us to thank Him for our blessings and that He wants us to commune with Him. He says that people do pray and that what we have is the answer to our prayers. "I think I live in a world that has a sovereign, one who rules. I don't think we are here by chance tonight. I think all these things are answers to our prayers. You are here tonight because someone has prayed for you, your pastor, your friend, your mother, and it may be your mother who is now in Paradise." The speaker declared that we do not always know how our prayers are answered, but that they are; also, that we do not always know that we act in answer to the prayers of someone, but that we do.

Dr. Williams told a story of a young lady who was playing in light opera. She was stranded in a certain town, where he later held a revival. She had decided to quit the opera and had secured employment in the town. She saw an account of her mother's death in the paper. She then realized how much she loved her mother. She dropped into the union meeting being held. Dr. Williams made the statement that he did not believe anyone was there that night by chance, but in answer to the prayer of someone. A note from the girl was passed to him, stating that she thought she was there in answer to her mother's prayers. "I want you to pray for me," the note said. The prayer was offered. Later she stayed in an after meeting and was placed in charge of a good personal worker. The next Sunday she gave her heart to God. Years after, when the evangelist told the story in a big meeting in Chicago, the same girl came forward after the discourse, and made herself known to the evangelist. "I asked her what she was doing in Chicago," said Dr. Williams. "She told me that she was in the Moody Institute, preparing for missionary work. This is a clear case of what the prayer by a dying mother will do."

"Many a soul has died complaining that God has failed to answer prayer, or had not done so as it had been prayed. Many of our prayers are answered and we know nothing about it, or how the answer has come. How many are calling upon God to bless this religious campaign. Why don't you talk to God about this matter, as important as it is. When we stop to think about it, it is an absurdity that we do not pray more, that we do not talk more to God, when it means so much."

Dr. Williams stated that God answers prayers in such a way as to make the individual conscious of it, either by a spiritual feeling or through His work. There is a promise of this in the text of the evening. The only reason he stated one is not conscious of an answer of prayer is that the prayer has not been properly offered. "Until you get to praying," said Dr. Williams, "and get a conscious hold on God, there will be no revival in Ardmore. I don't like for an evangelist to count numbers and give forth to the world a great number of converts secured simply by excitement. If you have a revival here it will be one that is prayed down. Power in prayer is more effective than great sermons. If you don't get your answers to prayer, the fault is with you or with your prayer. Sometimes the lack of proper communion is the cause of your failure in prayer. Some people are as unfamiliar with the terms of prayer, as they are with some terms we daily use. When the 'juice' fails in the electric wire, some say something is wrong at the power house. No, that is not always the case. The slightest break in the wire that carries the juice may be the cause. So with prayer. If the connection is broken in the least way, between you and God, the effect is broken. Telephones and telegraphs will not work when storms tear down the wires. There is a like circuit in God and man, which is complete unless it is broken. Some try to pray when sin has the circuit broken. Are your loved ones still in sin, because you have let sin break the circuit between you and God? If so, oh, call tonight for the linemen to repair the line and complete the circuit between you and the Heavenly Father.

"The spiritual man is the praying man, and is the one who is winning our today. The Christian who prays is on the winning hand. Most Christians spend too little time in prayer. Lots of people spend but three minutes each day in prayer to their Heavenly Father and never think of Him any other time during the day. The great heart of our Heavenly Father yearns for the gift of our hearts and lives. The best way in the world to pray is to get the bible and see if you can find the answer. The probability is that God has answered your prayer in His word. If you are in trouble and will open the bible, perhaps your eyes will fall upon this passage, 'Let not your heart be troubled,' which may be the answer to your prayer. Pray with the open book before you, and pray and talk with God. The average Christian needs to learn the A. B. C. of prayer. 'We always find that when great things are accomplished, much time has been spent in prayer for the success of the object. God answers the prayers of those who cry unto Him day and night. Oh, let us pray to Him that he give us Ardmore for Christ and promise Him, 'Thy name shall have the glory.'"

Following the sermon, Prfo. H. J. Bray, who has charge of the music, sang a most beautiful solo, and the congregation was dismissed. However, the great chorus was not anxious to leave, and remained at least thirty minutes rehearsing for the meeting tonight.

Bazaar Wednesday

The bazaar to have been given by the Christian Ladies Tuesday, has been postponed until Wednesday. All ladies who promised articles will please bring them to Frame's new drug store Wednesday morning.

"Choirs" of a Symphony Orchestra.

Although the three "choirs" of a symphony orchestra have been designated as the "string," the "brass" and the "woodwind," such modifications have crept in since the days when symphony orchestras were conceived that the three classifications have been found inadequate. Thus, percussion instruments have been added, like the tympani, while instruments like cymbals and the xylophone have no classification whatever. The harp, which is in reality a stringed instrument, is not included among the "strings," which term belongs only to the instruments of the violin family.

Also, of recent years the silver-flute has superseded the wooden instrument in many symphony orchestras, although it is still classed among the "woodwinds."

Josef Stransky, the conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, has found the silver flute so conducive to tonal balance with the other members of the so-called wood group (oboes, clarinets, and bassoons) and its pure carrying quality so well adapted to symphonic work that the three flutists of the Philharmonic Orchestra have been equipped with the metal instruments.
